

WE WILL REMEMBER THEM

ST DUNSTAN'S is one of the most deserving charities in Britain. Founded in 1915 to help blinded First World War soldiers to lead the most independent lives possible, St. Dunstan's still cares for veterans of that conflict, together with ex-servicemen and women from the Second World War, and places like Ulster and the Falklands. At any one time, St. Dunstan's is helping to make life as rewarding as possible for around 2,500 former Forces personnel who lost their sight in the service of our country.

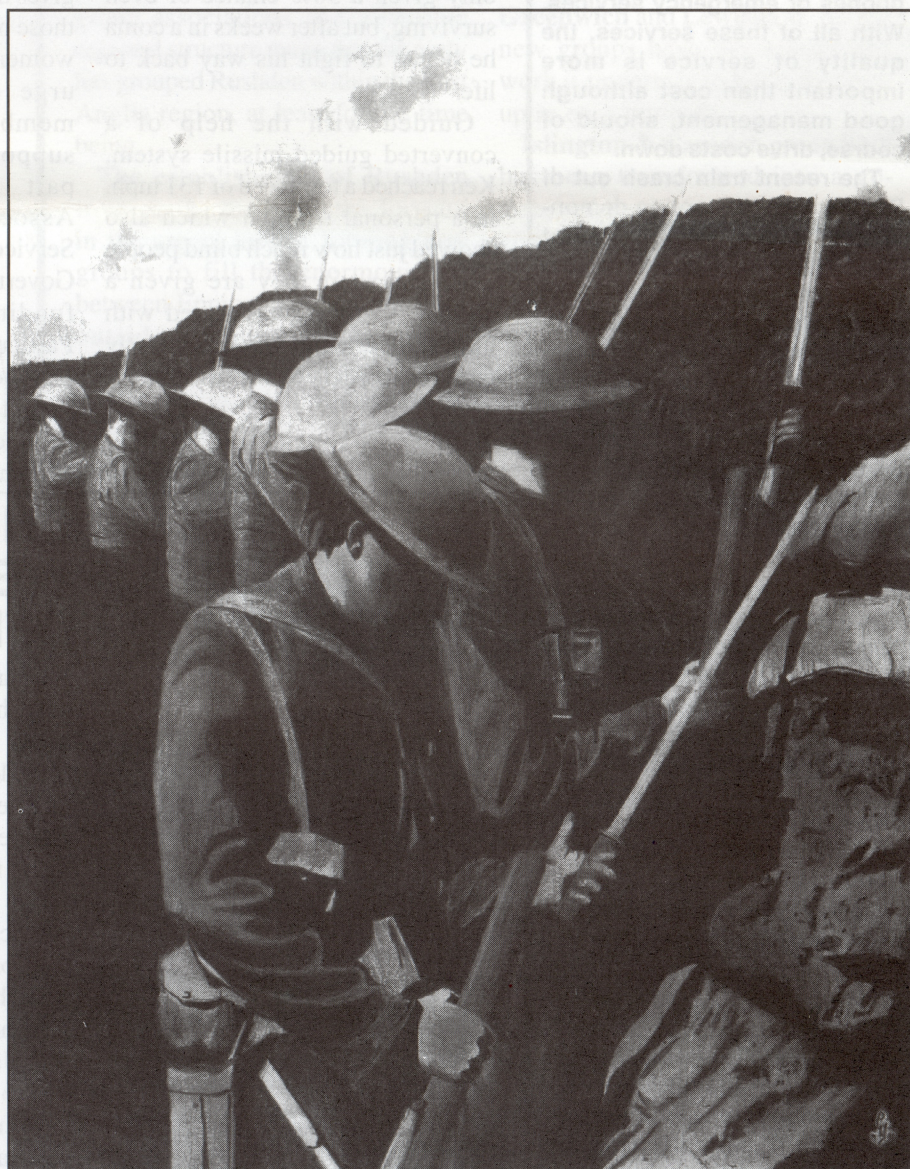

By providing this service, St. Dunstan's allows many brave individuals to retain a degree of independence. Many are able to live at home, thanks to the training they have received and the support St. Dunstan's give to their families. This, of course, not only helps the people directly involved, but also helps to save the Health Service the very large sums of money which would be used up if they were in nursing homes or similar residential institutions.

Yet all this work is financed by private charitable donations. Appeals by St. Dunstan's for funds from the Government and the National Lottery have been ignored time after time. Politically Correct New Labour ministers and bureaucrats regularly hand out millions of pounds to a whole host of undeserving causes: bogus asylum-seekers, sexual perverts, teenage criminals, New Age spongers, multicultural brainwashers and drug addicts. You name 'em, they get our money; but the men and women of St. Dunstan's don't get a penny.

The National Lottery Charities Board (NLCB) turned down a bid for £600,000 to help with training and transport facilities, while the Department of Health has turned down two applications for help under their Section 64 Grants Scheme. St. Dunstan's application for lottery aid was submitted in the NLCB's Health, Disability and Care Round, but was rejected out of hand.

No reason was given for this, although the same round saw approval of grants for all sorts of groups including a racially based one for the blind, but only for those of Asian descent, thus excluding everyone else. Anyone with Internet access can confirm this, and see that it's only the tip of a politically correct iceberg, by checking out the list of grants on the NLCB website.

Now, with the roof of St. Dunstan's Brighton Rehabilitation Centre literally collapsing — forcing the closure of the therapeutic swimming pool lest someone be killed by falling lumps of concrete — the charity's officials are having to go back, cap in hand, once again. All they are asking for is £500,000 towards the £1.5million bill for essential repairs. But on past experience, they haven't got a chance.

In New Labour's PC Britain, blind ex-servicemen are an embarrassing reminder of 'old fashioned' concepts like sacrifice, patriotism and courage. Blair and Co. just don't care about these forgotten heroes.

PRIVATISATION

No one, aside from die-hard Socialists, would argue that productive industry should be in anything other than private ownership so that the most efficient and cost effective organisation results.

The BNP would qualify the above by saying that the ownership should be British thus having no foreign loyalties. The recent economic meltdown in the Far East shows exactly what happens when foreign businesses are squeezed — their foreign concerns in Britain are closed down. Canada's NORTEL, Taiwan's LiteOn, Japan's Mitsubishi and Fujitsu and Germany's Siemens; all of them have closed plants in Britain. So much for inward investment!

There is another aspect of privatisation, however, and that relates to infrastructure. Infrastructure relates to vital service, whether it's roads or rail networks; water & sewage systems; gas or electric; telephones or emergency services. With all of these services, the quality of service is more important than cost although good management, should of course, drive costs down.

The recent train crash out of Paddington, W. London demonstrates all too clearly what happens when considerations of profit take precedence over safety and quality of service. It is the second such crash in two years, the last one on the same stretch of line at Southall. Both caused numerous fatalities. British Rail was privatised by the Tories and split up into competing companies.

Competing concerns and non-integration were the completely predictable result. Indirectly, the Tories share at least some of the blame for everyone who has died in these crashes. Railtrack, the company responsible for the track and signalling, already faced complaints over safety concerns. There has been speculation that Railtrack might lose its licence.

So while Railtrack is likely to be thrown to the wolves, the root cause of the crash — profit from infrastructure — will go un-addressed.

Air Traffic Control (ATC) has long been the subject of speculation that it too might be privatised. Already, ATC is known to have problems coping with increasing air flights. There have been a number of 'near misses' which in practice mean up to a mile. It is common to see five or more aircraft 'stacked up' in a holding pattern such is the congestion. The only reason that ATC have not yet been privatised is governmental nervousness about the prospect of profit degrading the service and causing an accident. That in itself tells us all we need to know about the wisdom of privatising infrastructure. The question remains: when will governmental greed overcome the fear of a major aircraft crash?

CAN YOU really imagine suddenly becoming blind? Wouldn't it leave you devastated, your life in ruins, feeling you could never do anything except sit in a chair for the rest of your life? And can you imagine how much it would then mean to you to find that there were people around to show you that it needn't be like that? That's how important St. Dunstan's is to thousands of blind ex-servicemen.

The charity hit the headlines last month when Ken Moss broke the Land Speed Record for a solo blind driver. Ken is an ex-policeman, who was blinded in a car accident while on duty. When he was cut from his wrecked police car in 1992 he was only given a 50% chance of even surviving, but after weeks in a coma he began to fight his way back to life.

Guided with the help of a converted guided missile system, Ken reached a top speed of 131 mph, in a personal triumph which also showed just how much blind people can achieve if they are given a chance. Everyone connected with his record attempt was particularly grateful to MG, who provided the car. Various larger car companies were approached first, and all refused to help, but MG — one of the last truly British marques — were enthusiastic from the start and came up trumps.

What's more, MG then gave Ken the MGF Sportscar to keep! In turn, Ken has offered it as a prize to help St. Dunstan's raise funds. Every person who donates to St. Dunstan's between now and next March will have their name put into a special prize draw, and the first out of the hat will win the car! Why not give it a go? Send the largest donation you can afford, made payable to St. Dunstan's and addressed to Ken Moss, St. Dunstan's, Room HD18, FREEPOST, London W1A 4XB.

Having myself lost just one eye in an accident nine years ago, I have some slight inkling of what the heroes of St. Dunstan's have gone through, especially as I very nearly lost my sight completely. I can imagine just how much the independence which the work of the charity gives them means to those brave men and women. I therefore urge every BNP member and supporter to take part in the Association of British Ex-Servicemen campaign to force the Government to supply some decent funding for St. Dunstan's. Particularly in this Remembrance Day month, it is especially fitting not just to remember those who sacrificed so much for Britain and British freedom in times of war, but actually to do something to help some of our land's forgotten heroes.

So send something to St. Dunstan's, and write those letters to Tony Blair, your MP and your local paper. There's no need to mention the British National Party. Just write to draw their attention to the disgraceful situation outlined on our front page, and to point out that St. Dunstaners deserve better. If New Labour's spin-doctors realise that there might be some votes in it, St. Dunstan's will suddenly get the money they need. It shouldn't be like that, but it is, so please get writing.

In the hot seat: Ken Moss

ABEX

The Association of British Ex-Servicemen is the British National Party's latest circle. All British ex-servicemen and women (including those who did National Service) are eligible to register as supporters of ABEX, whether they are members of the BNP or not. There is no membership fee, but individuals who register as supporters will be contacted from time to time with news of ABEX campaigns. We need ex-servicemen to help build ABEX into an effective campaigning machine by providing us with information about problems facing ex-services personnel. ABEX also needs volunteer regional co-ordinators, so drop us a line if you think you might be able to help to:- PO Box 1032, Ilford, Essex IG1 1DY

CHURCH TO WELCOME SEX OFFENDERS

A Church of England report Meeting the Challenge says that Churches have a duty to welcome sex offenders into Churches, but warns that nearly two per cent of men in congregations over the age of 40 are likely to be sex-offenders.

The barmy report admits that convicted sex offenders are unlikely to reform and that they are attracted to Churches because of the presence of young people.

Rt. Rev Hardy: Welcomes pervers

Britain '99

I'm looking through a crystal ball, I'm a soldier of the line,
Through this haze of smoke and fire I see Britain '99.
Can this be Britain? I ask myself, what kind of hell is this?
Do I die for nothing here without my love's sweet kiss?
I see my land as it will be, by God I'm hurting now,
I see a dark invader, I see my kinsfolk bow.
I beg you to look yourself and tell me what you see,
Can that really be Britannia, low on bended knee?
Did we surrender to a foe? Did we lose our flags?
Did invaders really shred them — a pile of filthy rags?
This future full of traitors, this future that I view,
Tell me before I die padre, tell me it's not true.
For if it's so, and we lost our land, why should I die now?
Dying here with blood soaked tears for the traitors' holy cow.
The padre gives me his blessing as I scream and curse and yell,
It's not my pain that makes me shout but the future's warning bell.
I wish I hadn't seen it son, that evil crystal ball,
That vision of your future and our blessed country's fall.
Remember me my son, my British boy, my heir,
Remember me for what I was when the rest no longer care.
My curse upon the traitors, my curse upon the foe,
My curse it goes to all of you who surrendered what was mine,
I'm a dying British soldier, defender of your line,
Ashamed to die for that foreign land you call Britain '99.

LABOUR FAIL ON EDUCATION, HEALTH AND JOBS

More than 1,000 disabled workers including injured former servicemen are losing to lose their jobs as a result of government spending cuts. Remploi, set up in 1945 to provide work for disabled war veterans is to shut 18 factories, 12 of them immediately.

Labour are following the spending plans laid down by Michael Portillo when he was Tory employment secretary. The final nail in the Remploi coffin has been supplied by disability Minister Margaret Hodge.

Phil Brannan, 47, a former Royal Highland Fusilier who was shot in the leg in N. Ireland said at the Remploi Springburn, Glasgow site: "The Remploi obituary should be 'Mugged by Portillo; murdered by Hodge'."

Frank Dobson, the Health Secretary has rejected the finding of a Royal Commission which called for free Health Care for all. The £1.3 billion package was, he said, unaffordable. Coincidentally, that is precisely the sum which Britain will spend this year on bogus asylum seekers.

An Age Concern spokesman said that elderly people had been "betrayed" by Labour.

● On Education, David Blunkett, the Labour Minister responsible, said that Labour had fulfilled its pledge on reducing primary school class sizes from the 5-7 age range despite numbers swelling in Secondary schools and in the 8-11 category just as British Nationalist predicted they would 2½ years ago!

● Half of all teachers are sticking to the trendy failed methods of teaching children reading — expecting them to memorise words and parts of words rather than teaching children the letters that represent sounds — c-a-t spells cat. Children taught by phonetics are able to learn the basics of reading within 8-12 weeks. The trendy method can take three years.

One-third of pensioners and children are still living in poverty

Three years, coincidentally, is how far Russian schoolchildren are ahead of their British counterparts.

In language, science and maths the Russian children are three years ahead said Kevin McNey, chairman of Nord Anglia — a private education company — and who has seen for himself the variation in ability because his work so frequently takes him to Russia.

● So damaging to white self-esteem has been the multi-cultural onslaught on British history and culture that white boys in Newham schools are now underperforming every other ethnic group including blacks! There is little doubt as to the cause. To be a white male in a Britain where everything is being geared up to advance ethnic minorities is to have no future. So why should they bother? The answer then being that they don't.

● Southwark council produced figures two years ago showing that white children are a minority in its schools. The same is true in most of inner London. Is it any wonder that when white boys see their heritage and country being taken away from them that, rather like the red Indians of America, they take to drugs & booze and 'drop out'?

● Health Secretary Frank Dobson is also getting it in the neck from Labour chiefs after polls show that less people think that the NHS is improving and more people (41%) think that it's getting worse.

Did the pollsters ask Bill

Britain's streets are still home to beggars and dossers

Richardson whose son died after being refused treatment at Salford's Hope hospital? Bill's son, Howard, a 46-year-old father of two blacked out at work and was refused a brain scan at Hope. One doctor told him: "Do you know how expensive they are?" Howard later died from a brain tumour.

Dead: Howard Richardson

Bill said: "My son left school at 16. He spent 30 years paying into the system. When he went to the NHS for help, they weren't bothered. They have the finest machinery at Hope. Is it standing in an empty room? When I read they'd flown in a refugee to treat it'd made my blood boil. Why was it too expensive to save my son?"

At the same time that money is tight for essential services like the fire service, NHS and the police, Britain has spent £12 billion on 'asylum seekers' and other sundry immigrants over the last ten years. It makes you think doesn't it?

THE TED BUDDEN COLUMN

WHO WILL PAY FOR BARREN EUROPE?

The Pope is often criticised by organisations such as the Family Planning Association (in reality, the Inciting Prevention Association) for inciting a world population explosion by opposing artificial birth control. The Pope is blameless in this respect for almost all the increase in the world's population is from the non-Christian portion.

Indeed, the teachings of the Roman Catholic church are now so widely disregarded and la dolce vita so widely admired that Italy now has the lowest birthrate in the world followed closely by Spain, both reputedly devoutly Catholic countries. In the sterility stakes, Germany is hard on the heels of those two. In Britain, the birth rate continues below replacement level despite the fact that it is boosted by fast-breeding immigrants. This decline is further exacerbated by the Government's declared intention of forcing women to forsake the family and go back to work to supplement their meagre incomes.

The Spanish Government has recently announced that, because of the falling birthrate, it will be necessary to import a million immigrants to keep the Spanish in the style to which they've become accustomed. The excuse, as always, is that Spaniards won't do the menial jobs or the hard work on building sites etc., blithely ignoring the fact that no work is too menial or too hard that you can't find someone to do it if you pay them enough. By immigrants, the Spaniards undoubtedly mean North African immigrants of whom there are many thousands already in Spain and they are destined to spread inexorably throughout Europe.

Italy has a large immigrant population already comprising the Moslem Kurds, who admittedly seem to be fairer skinned than many Italians, and Albanians who don't do the hard or menial jobs but instead concentrate on drug running, prostitution and general gangsterism. They perform these tasks so efficiently that 800 additional police have been drafted from Rome to Milan where most Milanese say that they are afraid to go out after dark.

But there is also a financial dimension to this crisis which the politicians wilfully disregard in their quest for a European superstate that won't be European for much longer. Both Germany and Italy pay very generous pensions to their old people in what are rapidly ageing populations. Any attempt by either Government to cut back on this burden is invariably met by street demonstrations which result in the authorities immediately caving in.

But then who will pay for these pensions in the European superstate? Despite pensions in Britain being about the worst in Europe, it seems highly likely that when our taxes are raked into a common pool, we will be paying.

I am dead set against cruelty to dumb animals. That is why I view with horror the seaside freak shows that always take place around this time of year. I refer, of course, to the party conferences.

The Labour Party conference was noteworthy merely for the fact that they didn't confer about anything at all lest they should reveal the party in its true colours. The 'high spot' was the keynote speech of Tony Blair that was riddled with so much spide and malice and downright mendacity that it had the dubious merit of being true to character. This was greeted with the customary prolonged standing ovation by people who truly appreciate the black arts of the practised confidence trickster.

The Tory 'conference' was more illuminating in that it revealed the divisions that rendered it unelectable. Long may they continue to be so!

The 'high spot' was not the keynote speech of the nominal leader William Hague but Margaret Thatcher who seems increasingly to be a caricature of her former self; a caricature of a caricature in fact. She succeeded in revealing Hague as the very minor figure he truly is. There stood little Willie dwarfed by Margaret Thatcher on the podium, while she delivered a diatribe that caused me to wonder why the meeting wasn't stewarded by men in white coats. Hague gazed up at the 'Iron Loony' with an inane grin on his face; nodding furiously as the eccentric utterances dripped from her lips. Indeed he nodded so much that I thought that his head would drop off — but that was just wishful thinking.

It really seems that the Tories have gone ice cold on the European Union. Why, there were even tentative suggestions that we would be better off in the North American Free Trade Area, an idea advanced by the Daily Telegraph's Canadian owner Conrad Black, at a time when most other Canadians are thoroughly disenchanted with the way that their jobs are disappearing down Mexico way. They seem to think that being dominated by the USA is far better than participating in Europe and they would gladly swap being an offshore island of Europe to being an offshore island of North America — about 3,000 miles offshore in fact.

What puzzles me is the fact that during the referendum in 1975 we constantly warned that the Treaty of Rome made a European Federation inevitable. We were reviled for that by the Tories and I had the unusual experience of being called a communist for speaking out against dear Mr. Heath's master plan. Where were those anti-European Tories then? It was crystal clear to us. Are they really so dim that they couldn't grasp that fact? Either way, it renders them unfit to rule ever again.

These conferences are so damnably tiresome that I was frequently forced to take the ultimate sanction. I'm considering suing the BBC for the repetitive strain injury to my thumb sustained by constantly pressing the off switch.

'ASYLUM-SEEKERS' ARE SWAMPING BRITAIN

The numbers to come here from abroad have no limit. Headlines such as '200 refugees nabbed by cops' and 'Dover and out — 140 illegal immigrants seized in swoop at port' are designed to soothe public disquiet about what is a crisis.

The problem behind the headlines, of course, is that after being 'nicked' by the police, they are then free to carry on and claim asylum and benefits in Britain. They are not deported.

In August there were 7,120 applications for political asylum bringing the total this year as at August to 86,065. Each application actually represents an average of three people! This sneaky device of 'applications' has been adopted by a government desperate to cover up the vast scale of the continuing immigration into this country. The real figure, therefore is a whopping 258,195. And that's just to August! Extrapolating a further four months gives a likely figure for 'asylum seekers' this year of a monster 387,292.

Home Office bulletin's reveal that plans to speed up the processing of applications have failed and customs and immigration are still being kept deliberately short of resources so that they are unable to stem the tide. 'Asylum seekers' are being housed anywhere local authorities think that they can get away with it.

At Oakington barracks in S. Cambs. and at Templar barracks in Ashford, Kent, the local councils are engaged in refurbishment ready to take in 'their fair share of Albanians'.

On Merseyside, in Everton flats, Liverpool there are already 120 Iranians and at Eugene Park, Halewood the council is busily refurbishing its stock of council flats ready for yet more 'asylum seekers'.

Bury, like Merseyside, has also turned over a portion of its council housing stock to take in the 'refugees'.

Part of HMP Lindholme in S. Yorkshire, near Doncaster is being made available to 112 scroungers and in Over Stowey, Somerset, the old Quantock school has been earmarked to house 70.

Parents across the country have also noticed that places in local schools remain untaken. The reason? They are allocated to 'asylum seekers'!

Asylum seekers come from, in order of their numbers: Albania,

Riot police: Called into Dover to stop Albanian gangs of men beating and slashing Dover teenagers. It was this incident which persuaded HMG to disperse the 'refugees'

Somalia, Sri Lanka, Afghanistan, Pakistan, Turkey and China. As readers can see, these countries alone represent populations of billions and they all want to come here to sign up for a free house and welfare benefits!

The swamping of Britain is not likely to be stemmed unless and until the whole concept of political asylum — a concept developed in the last century and which applied to no more than several hundred at any one time — is rejected. In the age of mass travel by airliner in which the most distant parts of the world are only a few hours flying time away, political asylum cannot be tolerated by any country that does not wish to be overwhelmed. It is all rather reminiscent of Jean Raspail's Camp of the Saints in which he wrote of the complete swamping of W. Europe and which turned it into a Third World outpost.

Unfortunately, no government either Labour or Tory is going to grasp this nettle. This invasion will continue until British people wake up and empower the BNP to stop this suffocating tide.

THE BNP AND RACE

The BNP is best known for its policy on race and immigration. The BNP opposes immigration into the UK from whatever its source. For forty years this immigration has primarily been coloured. But it is not an issue of colour since the party is equally opposed to immigration from Albania and Eastern Europe.

The BNP is not a 'race supremacist' party. The BNP does not claim that any one race is superior to any other, simply that they are different. The party merely wishes to preserve those differences which make up the rich tapestry of human kind.

Neither has the BNP any connection with 'race hate'. Indeed it is the multi-racialists who are the haters since it is they who are determined to destroy all cultures and all races to achieve a multi-racial mish-mash.

To protect and preserve the racial and cultural integrity of the British people — and of others too, the party believes in separation.

Only in a Black society will Black kids find true Black role models. Only in a Muslim society will Muslims find their religion free from Western influence. All peoples need a homeland. The British too need a homeland.

Nor are the BNP 'racist'. Indeed, the BNP are resisting the racist colonisation of Britain in which the native people of Britain are having their culture suppressed, their land colonised and are being discriminated against on racial grounds.

To sum up, the BNP is fighting for the very right to exist of not just the British, but of all peoples.

Why the doubt over what should happen to Melita Norwood?

Having had so many years of betraying the British people, she obviously has most of the qualities needed to join the government immediately.

J. Burton, letters, News of the World.

The government is in the process of destroying the dream [of British success in e-commerce] so that the police and secret services can keep a closer watch on all of us. Buried deep inside the draft Electronic Communications Bill, which is designed to prepare Britain for a future based on electronic commerce, are a series of clauses that many experts say are the biggest single assault on our rights in 50 years.

If the Bill is passed, the police and secret services will be free to tap people's e-mails with virtually no judicial oversight. They will be able, in effect, to write their own warrants and search home computers for anything interesting or useful. If, for example, you have encrypted data or e-mails on your computer, then the police will have the right to demand the password unlocking them. If you refuse, or have forgotten it then you face two years in jail. To get you imprisoned, the police have to do nothing. It is up to you to prove your innocence — reversing the usual 'innocent until proven guilty' principle of law.

The police will also be able to issue gagging orders preventing you from telling a soul that your home has been raided. Again, there is virtually no judicial oversight. If you do let on, then you face five years in jail. This gagging order also extends to any complaint you make about abuses of power by the police or security services. These will be heard by secret tribunal and evidence can be submitted behind your back. Cross-examination, and therefore a fair defence, will be impossible.

It could be argued that anyone sending encrypted e-mails was up to no good and that the police should keep an eye on them. But with the Internet, business routinely uses encryption to protect its secrets... If you have ever bought anything over the Internet, the chances are, you credit card details were encrypted too.

Nor are the new powers limited to suspected criminals: they apply to all of us. The police will be allowed to raid the homes and workplaces of a suspect's friends, family and business associates.

The state has a duty to protect us all from terrorists, paedophiles and drugrunners. Few will argue with that but is it really worth killing off Britain's e-commerce revolution and eroding our civil rights for laws that serious criminals will easily avoid? Danny Penman, The Express.

If MPs deem hunting the fox to be cruel what have they to say about Halal ritual slaughter? Thousands of sheep and cattle are killed every day by cutting their throats and allowing them to slowly bleed to death. [It appears that] it's OK, so long as you have brought this barbaric practice to these shores from some foreign land. And as long as you chant some magic words, perhaps to drown out the poor animal's bellows of pain and terror!

Earth Dog, Running Dog

The rise of Jörg Haider and his 'extremist' Freedom Party in Austria is causing some concern among Left-Liberal thinkers in this country, who fear that something of the kind might happen here.

The 'lesson for Britain' argues one commentator 'is simple.' It is to steer clear of any system of Proportional Representation such as operates in Austria.

'We should not forget,' he says, 'the result of a survey in 1995 showing that, in Britain, nine per cent of the electorate would definitely vote for an extreme Le Pen-type party and peoples made up 30 per cent of the world's population, now it is in single figures with white females of child bearing age only 2 per cent.

In America, President Clinton has warned America that whites will be in a minority. Britain too is on that same road to racial extinction, social chaos and loss of civilisation.

another 17 per cent would seriously consider doing so.'

This democratic thinker takes it for granted that, even though as many as a quarter of the British electorate may hold these 'extremist' views, however hesitantly, they must at all costs be prevented from having their views represented in Parliament. They must, in effect, be permanently disenfranchised. Peter Simple, The Telegraph.

We welcome the crackdown on illegal immigrants at Dover. But we'd be even more impressed if finding clandestines hiding in trucks meant anything.

Instead, they get what they came here for — food vouchers and free train tickets to Croydon to sign on.

As Jane Moore wrote in her column yesterday, to immigrants this is the country with MUG written in large letters across its flag.

WHITES STILL FORM MAJORITY OF RACE-HATE VICTIMS

The wave of race-hate crime in which white people form the majority of victims continues apace. From London to Oldham, from W. Yorks, to leafy Surrey, the race monsters are robbing, beating, raping and murdering white people purely because of the colour of their skin.

In Batley, W. Yorks., a white family, living in a predominantly Asian area were the victims of attempted arson in September when a lone man stuffed fireworks through the family's letter box. Mrs. Roberts said: "This person knew there were children in the house, but doesn't care." Fireworks had been thrown at the windows before. Mrs. Robertson went on: "I once heard someone shout 'next time we hope you go up with it'." Dewsbury divisional police have confirmed that they are treating the incident as racial.

Across the Pennines in Lancashire, 87-year-old Maude Bentley was thrown to the ground face first when her handbag was snatched in broad daylight outside her home in Werneth, Oldham.

Speaking from her hospital bed she said: "One minute I was standing outside my front door and the next I was face-down on the floor with blood everywhere." Maude suffered two black eyes, severe cuts and bruises to her face and hands as well as a broken nose.

Some might say that this is 'just' a mugging. But why is it that 'muggings' committed by non-whites invariably choose whites as their target? This and the sheer numbers of crimes against whites in Oldham leave no doubt — these crimes are racial.

Another pensioner, a 68-year-old man was robbed at knife-point and then forced to go back to his home at which the racist robber then looted at his leisure.

Knocking whites off their cycles appears to be popular with white-haters in Oldham. In July an 11-year-old and a 13-year-old and last month, a 23-year-old were knocked off their bikes. The two youngsters had their bikes stolen; the 23-year-old was beaten by a five-strong gang.

Last month, an 8-strong gang attacked and beat a 27-year-old man in an unprovoked attack. He suffered cuts and bruises. Also lucky was a 16-year-old who was slashed with a six-inch knife. The knife cut through clothing but merely scratched his skin. Less 'lucky' was a 29-year-old man who was attacked in August and suffered a broken nose.

A whole string of 'muggings' have been perpetrated upon young white men — one was beaten with a stick, as was a 35-year-old woman who was thrown to the ground and kicked before being robbed of £18. Even babies aren't safe as three race-hate thugs put a knife to a baby's throat, forcing the baby's father to hand over £120. That was in August.

Last month, a Surrey schoolgirl from Thornton Heath was racially abused while being indecently assaulted on her way to school. She was released from hospital with cuts and bruises and police said the victim was put through a 'horrific experience' by the racist sex beast.

A Gypsy Hill, S. London, woman is lucky to be alive after being doused in petrol and set alight by a racist thug in August going by the 'street name' of Yap and having a 'broad Jamaican accent'.

Still in August, two teenage girls from Tulse Hill, S. London, were snatched from the street and raped by a 4-strong gang. One was just thirteen. So too was a 17-year-old who was snatched off the street and driven to waste ground where, drowning her screams by playing loud garage music, three men took in turns to rape her.

One S. London police officer said: "If I was asked about the 'rape last week, I'd have to ask 'which one'. We seem to be averaging three or four serious sex attacks a week."

and Curriculums Authority to suggest that no one wanted to study Hengist, Horsa and King Alfred the Great etc.

We should nevertheless not be surprised at this negative attitude, because we know the real agenda behind the rubbish that comes so easily from the mouths of such people and their kind.

The multi-racist race-mixers have but one vindictive and genocidal goal. That is to destroy any sense of belonging amongst our people and other peoples as well. Separate identity, culture and history is anathema to them. They wish to mix everyone up into one unholy mess. The result will be no pride in who a person is and where they came from. No folk heroes, no stories, no legends and no trouble. Like selectively bred sheep, the mixed up mass (mess) will blindly follow the latest fads and notions even more compliantly than we do now. National boundaries will fall since there will no longer be racial or cultural distinctions thus facilitating even greater movement of labour and capital and of course increasing profits.

It starts by cutting off access to certain historical periods such as the great Celtic and Germanic dynasties and then works its way up until our civilisation is obliterated from history like some dirty stain. Already, one could be forgiven for thinking that British history started with the Second World War. In 150 years, will our history start with the docking of the Empire Windrush — since, of course, anything previous will not be relevant to multi-racial Britain?

P.J., Derbyshire.

He was also found by police to be wearing knickers and a ladies' swim suit. He claimed that this was to give his hernia support.

Obituary

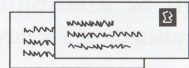

Clive Farrer of Peterborough, a long-time loyal BNP supporter and reader of BN has died aged 74 following heart surgery. Clive, who often penned letters to BN and sent in news on affairs in Peterborough passed away on Tuesday October 19th.

At the funeral on the 29th, one of Clive's friends conducted a non-religious service and spoke of him as being a true Nationalist. The service, which was packed, was attended by many local party members. Clive, whose coffin was draped in the Union flag, was also a member of the British Operatic Society — some of whose members were there to sing and, in his youth, a keen rock climber.

He left a widow, June; a daughter Tracy and two grandchildren. He will be much missed by all his family and his party colleagues.

Sir — Several BNP members have informed me that they have tried and failed to get their local library to stock a copy of my autobiography, Many Shades of Black, primarily a history of the radical right since the 1950s.

The libraries must stock any book requested by a library member and the book will have an ISBN number by mid-November. So please try again then.

Sir — The idea for an ex-Servicemen's circle is a great idea, but let's get one thing straight. You must add ex-Servicewomen. Many army nurses died in the course of nursing casualties, so give some emphasis to our girls. I owe them my life.

Peter Stafford, Ferndown, Dorset.

Sir — I am writing to report that the exam boards and a Labour Minister have, for once, stuck up for the teaching of our history.

I wouldn't usually praise the actions of a Labour Minister, but I must give credit to Blunkett for realising that the teaching of Anglo-Saxon studies — our heritage — is vital to ensure that syllabuses are educationally sound.

EQUAL RIGHTS FOR LONDON'S WHITES!

With the BNP committed to contesting next year's London Assembly Elections, one of the important issues along with transport will be crime. For the BNP, the GLA elections will be a golden opportunity to talk about the most terrifying crime trend in the country, one which is completely ignored by the establishment politicians — race hate crime perpetrated against white people.

That was five years ago. Since then, not one but nine whites have fallen victim to the race-hate killers. There is no media circus recounting the deaths of David Ackley, Richard Everitt, Andrew Steventon, Danny Westmacott, Mark Sharp, Gary Wilmer, Louie Wade, Christopher Farrell and Michael Dooher. Nevertheless, the BNP will remember them as well as all the other white victims of racial murder such as Terry May, Catherine Ayling, Paul Carter, Albert and clubbed into a coma by a gang screaming "White trash", as was a Poplar, E. London man who went to retrieve his son's football from another gang of race-hate thugs.

In N. London who can forget the bestial murder of white policeman Keith Blakelock by a mob of savages? The man widely regarded as having got off with his murder is expected to be released at any time having served his 'life' sentence for another murder!

Not surprisingly, London is becoming an unbearable place to live. The reason is crime, particularly race-hate crime and white people are its victims.

The BNP is uniquely placed to benefit from public dissatisfaction regarding London's policing. Currently, the Met are running lots of adverts (see right) about 'race crime'. The ads are a joke and most Londoners know it. For that reason, the party's new leaflet spoofing the Met is sure to be greeted with widespread pleasure from real Londoners and screams of rage from 'liberals' beavering away to facilitate the genocide of the British. London's top copper Paul Condon will be none to pleased either. Tough! He had his chance to protect Londoners from the race-hate crime wave and he failed. Perhaps

The new leaflet to launch the party's drive towards the Greater London Assembly Elections

Whole swathes of our country are blighted by racist thugs robbing, beating, raping and murdering white people purely because of the colour of their skin. For political reasons, the only race hate victim that seems to count is that of murdered black teenager, Stephen Lawrence.

Marriner, Janie Shepherd, Hugh McCullum and Phillip Gosling.

And these are 'just' the ones that have been murdered. Catford is notorious for the incidents of gang rape perpetrated against white girls. Other parts of S. London are nearly as bad. In W. London, 12-year-old Daniel Moore was kicked

We need affordable housing in Rugeley

Sir,

The proposed house building on farmland near Burnthill Lane in Rugeley is totally unnecessary. There is plenty of derelict land around Rugeley which could be redeveloped for new homes. But reclaiming urban wasteland is less profitable than bulldozing our countryside, and it is not just happening here but right across the country.

So why do we need all these extra houses? The official story is that it is because of the increasing number of people who live alone, particularly as a result of the rising divorce rate. But if there is a shortage of housing for those people, the answer is to build large numbers of affordable one-bedroom flats on reclaimed land in the cities and big towns where they live at present, not to build expensive three-bedroomed houses all over what's left of our countryside!

We need to take action now to stop the greedy developers, but don't expect any help from the bought and paid for politicians. The only way to stop the building is throw them all out.

Neil Phillips, Rugeley BNP Organiser

The ongoing propaganda war being fought out at local level is going to be won when more letters like the one shown left and printed in the Rugeley Post start to appear, not in their ones and twos but, in their hundreds

FIFTY AT NORTHANTS MEETING

Last month, in a useful example of cross regional cooperation between the East Midlands and East Anglia, the first BNP group was launched in Northamptonshire. A few members from Leicester, Peterborough, Grantham and Nottingham came to see for themselves the enthusiasm for the party in Northants. Fifty people were present including a welcome number of young women.

The meeting was chaired by the Leicester Organiser who also made a speech about care for the elderly.

He revealed how the authorities have all but washed their hands of the elderly in their care, spending much more on asylum seekers. "Our old folk", he said "have paid their taxes and National Insurance all their working lives. Do they get the care they deserve when the time comes that they need it? They do not. It's squandered on economic migrants!" There was much applause for this speech before the Nottingham Organiser, Calvin Richards reminded those present of the debt the region owed to the late John Peacock who kept the region together in some tough times. He said that listening and talking to our people was the surest way to build support and electoral success.

The surest indicator of the way the BNP is coming on in leaps and bounds was given in the speech from Peter Baker of Peterborough BNP. After delivering an amusing and popular speech which started by his reading out a fictitious letter to a Mr. Ranjit Singh from Tony and Cherrie Blair in which they welcomed his arrival into this country and informed him of all the benefits he would be entitled to, he then told the meeting of a keen female activist who had recently joined the party and, with her first pay cheque after joining, bought 1,000 BNP leaflets and now goes out for weekly leafleting sessions assisted by her seventy-year-old mother! "That", he said "is the kind of enthusiasm and commitment that exists within the party now."

After a break and a collection which raised £180 to start up the new Northants group, the meeting heard the final speaker of the evening Mr. Phil Edwards of the Media Monitoring Group. He explained how the word 'racism' is used as a Pavlovian trigger to cow ordinary folk into silence over quite legitimate fears concerning continued immigration and ethnic minority crime levels.

He recounted the meeting he attended (see Sep BN) when he

BNP FORM 6 NEW GROUPS!

Last month, following on from the establishment of new groups in Darlington and Liverpool, the party formed another group in Rushden, Northamptonshire. Although Northamptonshire falls within the East Midlands, transport links, near group associations and a flexible regional structure mean that the party has grouped Rushden within the East Anglia region, at least for the time being.

The establishment of Rushden BNP marks the first step forward in the urgent task of forming new groups to fill the enormous gap between Epping and E. Herts. (just outside London) and Leicester, some 70 miles away.

Also last month, the party began to undertake a much overdue overhaul of party infrastructure in S.E. London under the new leadership of dynamic Regional Organiser Colin Smith. The emphasis is to be on local party organisations rather than, as previously in S.E. London, a single regional one.

Bexley & Dartford BNP has been split up with secretaries for each and Colin has said that in his region, Organisers are out and Secretaries are in!

Colin told BN: "The party must make more use of people who do not fit the usual Organiser stereotype, which is to say the elderly and women. They can do everything else a typical Organiser can do with the exception of leafleting — and even that can be done in good areas."

Accordingly, S.E. London is being split into five new groups: Bexley, Bromley, Southwark, Greenwich and Lewisham. All the new groups have Secretaries and work is underway to build the party up in each borough.

Islington & Camden group BNP has been transformed into a go-ahead active group from being in a completely moribund state for the last year or so. The rejuvenated group is already leafleting widely across the two boroughs.

Elsewhere, Cambridge BNP has been dropped from the party listing following the sacking of the Organiser there. Non-performing party groups will be given all the help they need, but those not capable of improvement will be disbanded since low standards are unacceptable and drag down the efforts of others elsewhere. The good news for Cambs., however, is that a new group, provisionally called Fenland BNP is likely to be up and running as early as late this month!

In the past three months, the BNP has formed an astonishing thirteen new groups. All over the country morale is sky high. All over the country, the BNP is rolling forward. You can be a part of it. Join today!

NEW PARTY LEADERSHIP PROVOKES ENEMY ALARM!

The election of new party leader Nick Griffin has sent shivers of alarm down the spines of the enemies of Britain and the British.

The 'liberal' consensus of race-traitor and national sell-out is best exemplified by the determination to give our country away to anyone but the British — whether by collaboration in the continued immigrant invasion or the drive to surrender sovereignty to Europe.

'Liberals' know that all the establishment parties to a greater or lesser degree support the sell-out. They know that it is only Nationalism that opposes their evil schemes. That is why they are the ones to shriek loudest at the prospect of Nationalist success anywhere in Europe.

With the BNP having elected a leader capable of guiding the party over the long haul towards success, the alarm bells are quietly ringing in their malodorous liberal fastness. Reproduced below and abridged only for length is an article by arch liberal commentator, Francis Wheen writing in The Guardian:

'A slight smugness is detectable in British reactions to the electoral success of Jörg Haider's Freedom Party in Austria. Couldn't happen here, could it?

Probably not [but] after years of hibernation, something is stirring...

Unnoticed by the national or local media, the veteran British National Party (BNP) leader, John Tyndall was ousted two weeks ago. His victorious challenger, who won 62% of votes in a postal ballot of BNP members, is a smoothiechops Cambridge graduate by the name of Nick Griffin.

Griffin prefers Italian suits or smart-casual wear. He describes himself as a "moderniser" and "new nationalist"; he talks excitedly about the liberating power of the Internet; he is as contemptuous of his party's traditional supporters — the skinheads, the football hooligans — as Blairites are of old Labour. And, like Tony Blair, he believes he can tickle the erogenous zones of Middle England...

Griffin now argues, "It is at this point, when the British National Party suddenly becomes the focus of the hopes not just of the neglected and oppressed white working-class, but also of the frustrated and disorientated traditional middle-class that our future lies." BNP members have already begun attending rallies of farmers to chat up rural malcontents. But the most promising source of recruits, Griffin believes, is the anti-European campaign.

Now you may think that William Hague has cornered that particular market. However, unless or until Hague actually advocates outright withdrawal from the EU, there will be a sizeable minority of voters who find even the Tories' Europhobia too moderate for their taste. The UK Independence Party (UKIP), won three seats in the European Parliament this year.

Since that triumph, however, UKIP has been falling to pieces with startling speed. The national executive recently passed a motion of no confidence in its leader, Michael Holmes. He then staged a counter-coup at the party's annual conference in Solihull two weeks ago, which led to the sacking of the entire executive and the closure of the London HQ.

These shenanigans have been observed with great interest by Nick Griffin and the BNP. The new leaders of UKIP — Michael Holmes and Nigel Farage — who are now both MEPs — also set out to "combine our protest" with other anti-Euro campaigners. In his UKIP election leaflet this year, Holmes paid tribute to "citizens patriotic protest groups" such as Save Our Sterling, presumably unaware that Save Our Sterling was run by the BNP.

But here's an even stranger coincidence. Shortly before the 1997 general election, Mark Deavin spoke freely of his plans to undercover researchers from The Cook Report, who had posed as emissaries from Jean-Marie Le Pen's Front National. One necessary step, he said, was to get rid of the BNP leader John Tyndall ("who is actually an obstacle") and replace him with Deavin's chum Nick Griffin. This would leave one other obstacle. "If Blair becomes Prime Minister," Deavin predicted, "the BNP will be the official opposition in the inner cities, in working-class areas. The UKIP will be the opposition in the shires, the county areas, the middle-class opposition. That party is a serious opposition to us in middle England, but, if we had the resources, we could tear it to pieces."

Two weeks ago, at the same time as UKIP was tearing itself apart in Solihull, Nick Griffin duly toppled John Tyndall and promised a "realignment" of the far-right. He may not yet have the popular appeal of Jörg Haider; but he certainly needs watching.

JOIN NOW FOR THE YEAR 2000!

The party is now accepting year 2000 membership subscriptions. As in recent years, once again the party card has been given a new design which adds to its collectability. The card looks smart enough to compare with the best and is laminated to guard against beer and gravy stains!

While Horatio Nelson isn't a member, you can be! Mark the millennium with a year 2000 party membership card. Membership of the BNP costs just £20 per year with a half-rate

CROYDON BNP MAKES THE NEWS

Croydon branch of the British National Party have stirred up a hornets nest in the nearby borough of Kingston-upon-Thames and further afield too. Delivering the 'Kosovan Refugees? We Say No!' leaflet, the party found much support among local residents sick and tired of seeing friends and family slipping down the council housing queue and of migrants given government cash help that is withheld from our own needy folk.

The local Kingston Informer managed to find several outraged residents who objected to the party's leaflets. One brain-damaged woman called the leaflets "vile."

Local race commissar John Azah of Kingston's Race Equality Council and which has a brief to pacify local whites while their country is being given away to all and sundry said: "These leaflets are an infringement of my, and other people's, liberty."

Azah's un-British intolerance probably has something to do with his un-British ancestry.

After the IRG successfully leafleted Egham, Surrey in conjunction with activists from Berks and N. Hants, warning against pederasts; Croydon BNP returned a couple of weeks later to find two of the party's A4 anti-paedophile leaflets stuck on the window of a fish & chip shop displaying both sides of the leaflet for passers-by to read. A generous supply of leaflets were left on the counter with the owners strong approval!

Scourge of paedophilia

I would just like to respond to last week's article concerning the British National Party's leaflet against paedophilia.

We of the Surrey and Berkshire branches of the BNP did not wish to alarm the good people of Egham, we wanted only to draw their attentions to this very important issue that scourges our society.

The majority of citizens of this country want degenerates like Sid Munday imprisoned for life because ordinary people know paedophiles are incurable fiends.

Incidentally, the well-respected peer Lord Tebbit has voiced his concern of paedophile rings organised at the highest levels of society.

ADMINISTRATION TECHNOLOGY FUND

The party's administration is being totally overhauled as part of the quest for efficiency and professionalism throughout the BNP. Decentralisation involving additional people thus spreading the workload means more dedicated telephone lines and equipment, a digital printing machine and video-conferencing kit. The target is £6,000.

If the party aims to grow, the BNP must have the internal ability to deal with that growth. It's up to you. The party's National Treasurer (by profession an accountant) awaits your donation!
